

THE FIRST LADY

Mrs. Nixon became First Lady of the land on January 20, 1969. She wore this mimosa yellow gown at the Presidential inaugural ball in Washington that night.

The way to the White House is never easy, or even expected. This has certainly been so for Pat Nixon. Her life, from its earliest years, has been characterized by quiet tenacity in the face of difficulties. She has worked hard and devotedly for those things which meant most to her: family, husband and children, and then the public duties consequent on the entry into political life. Love, unselfishness and determination have been evident in her tireless loyalty.

She was born Thelma Catherine Ryan on March 16, 1913, in Ely, Nev. Her Irish father, then a miner, gave her the nickname "Pat" because she was born on the eve of St. Patrick's Day. She grew up on a ranch which her father bought in Artesia, Calif., when he gave up mining. Her mother died when she was 12, and she looked after her two brothers and father. She nursed her father through his last illness; after his death, she went to New York, a 17-year-old, and worked for two years as an X-ray technician to earn the money for college.

After working her way through the University of Southern California, she taught high school in Whittier, Calif., where she met Richard Nixon; he proposed the first night. They were married in June 21, 1940, but Mrs. Nixon continued to work up to and through the war to help with their joint finances.

The first political campaign was in 1946, when Nixon was elected to Congress. Since then, at his side, she has fought through seven other campaigns, two of them particularly bitter defeats. As the wife of the vice president (1953-1961), she visited some 60 foreign countries with her husband. In 1957, she won one of the many distinctions of her own: the Homemakers Forum awarded her a silver bowl as "the nation's ideal wife."

Mrs. Nixon could justifiably feel proud of the fact that her husband is President of the United States, since he himself says of her, in one of his frequent tributes, "She is my greatest asset."

It was said of Mrs. Nixon, during the last campaign, that Nixon still won his loudest round of applause simply by mentioning Pat.

1950, the then Rep. Nixon at the start of the election campaign, in which Nixon was a successful candidate for the Senate. Their daughters Tricia (left) and Julie were then aged four and two respectively.

In 1955, traveling through South America with the then Vice President Nixon, Mrs. Nixon is greeted by a little boy in Honduras.

1960, Mrs. Nixon at a meeting of the Senate Ladies Red Cross Unit.

1960, Mrs. Nixon faced with bitter disappointment as her husband, Vice President Nixon, concedes the presidential election to his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy.

1968, a twentieth birthday party for Julie Nixon, cutting her cake as her mother watches; beside Julie is her fiancé, David Eisenhower, behind are her father and her sister, Tricia.

LETTER FROM A SOLDIER

Dear Helen: I know you don't often print poetry, but I think this letter from a Serviceman in Vietnam is worthy of your column. Please use it, — G.L.

But all ANY SOLDIER asks of you is,

"Please remember me!"

— A LONELY SOLDIER

NOTE TO READERS: Remember, you can write Servicemen in Vietnam by sending your letter to:

Dear Helen: Our house is small, and I have no place to entertain my girl and boyfriends except in my bedroom where I have my records and we can dance, talk, listen to music, and otherwise enjoy ourselves.

My folks realize this and think it's okay, but my aunt came to visit and was shocked. "What will people think, a girl entertaining BOYS in her bedroom?" Is one of the milder things she asked.

We don't even neck. Isn't her attitude anachronistic — I think that's the word I want? — LUCY

Dear Lucy: Your aunt's attitude dates back to the olden days when they spelled bed, "SEX." Modern kids use their bedrooms as multi-purpose areas — and NOT for the purpose she suspects. . . Well not in YOUR case anyway.

So long as you leave the door open and the lights on, the bedroom shouldn't be off limits to you and your friends. — H.

New Fabric

A new fabric now on the market, and the most welcomed by homemakers who dread food spills on their favorite tablecloths, is the durable press fabric treated with a soil-released finish so that even oily and stubborn stains come out during regular machine washing.

Use Soap on Plastics

Never use volatile solvents on plastic or rubber. It may cause cracks or stiffness. Use soap or detergent suds.

ON CAMERA AGAIN, Rita Hayworth rehearses a seductive scene for an upcoming film in which she entices a young author to her home for an evening of fun and games. The 50-year-old actress, once considered Hollywood's love goddess, started her screen career in 1935.

TV NOTEBOOK

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A slight, nondescript man, a gangling, funny-looking fellow with sexy eyes, a large Negro with a shaved head, a balding gentleman with steely blue eyes—these are hardly descriptions of the oh-girls-isn't-he-gorgeous matinee idol.

Nevertheless, they wrap up the men who are luring customers into the Broadway theater.

The descriptions fit Alec McCowen, Jerry Orbach, James Earl Jones and Donald Pleasence, respectively.

Who?

It's like that on Broadway this year. The unknown star has won the rave reviews and kept the show going by sheer virtuosity of performance.

McCowen of "Hadrian VII," Orbach of "Promises, Promises," Jones of "The Great White Hope" and Pleasence of "The Man in the Glass Booth," along with Herschel Bernardi of "Zorba," Woody Allen of "Play It Again, Sam" and Dustin Hoffman of "Jimmy Shine" have wrestled domination of the theater from female stars.

Except for "Dear World," in which Angela Lansbury gives a superb performance, and Julie Harris who is enchanting in "Forty Carats," there have been no Funny Girls, Mames or Dolls (the latter two are still running) to make the male stars wonder where the good roles are.

Hoffman and Allen are the only male stars in the accepted sense, Hoffman because of "The Graduate" and Allen because of TV.

James Earl Jones is a fine and respected actor who worked long years at his craft and made a name in the industry. Pleasence, an Englishman, is also a respected name, but never before has he been "box office." McCowen has made a good living in the British theater for 25 years, but his name until now has never had the luster attached to a Schofield, an O'Toole, a Burton, an Olivier. Orbach made a fine Broadway debut several years back in "Carnival," then disappeared.

The most likely candidates to receive Tony Awards on April 20 are McCowen as a dramatic actor and Orbach for a musical performance.

McCowen as Hadrian VII gives a performance that is fantastic in its perfection, its attention to detail, its apparent ease. Audiences flock to see him and applaud. Yet he is never recognized off stage.

Dining in a mid-Manhattan restaurant with his mother and sister visiting from England, McCowen caused not a stir or a turned head.

A quiet, shy man with a sly sense of humor and a way of not revealing much about himself as he talks, he says:

"I don't look at what has happened to me in terms of it being overly belated recognition. I have always made a living as an actor—for 25 years, which is a triumph. I thought in terms of stardom. But as I went along I have done some lovely things. The success of 'Hadrian' is an unexpected bonus, a treat along the way."

There is no ego in McCowen's make-up, or he wouldn't tell this story on himself.

"During rehearsals in New York for 'Hadrian,' I was tired and I wanted a long weekend in Florida. I was given the time and hopped

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: Some months ago I had an abscessed tooth extracted, and after, when it didn't hurt and hardly bled, I knew it was too good to be true. A few days later, while I was reading to my little son, I suddenly felt weak and couldn't finish. My MD assured me my heart was O.K., but a blood test showed that I had anemia, a condition I still have.

Do you think the poison from my abscessed tooth went through my system and caused my anemia?—Mrs. Alfred P.

ANSWER: I've never heard of any tooth extraction causing any type of anemia. It must have been sheer coincidence for you to develop symptoms of this blood disease after you had your tooth taken out.

Think back. Could you not have had some prior warning symptoms, maybe not as dramatic as you describe?

As for poisons from an abscessed tooth getting into your blood stream and reaching all your vital organs—well that's just about what happens.

Soon after extraction of an abscessed tooth there is a sharp increase of bacteria in the blood stream. Some of the increase is due to disturbing the abscess in the process of removing the tooth, and some from the large, raw, open wound that remains from the extraction. This bacterial increase in the blood is called bacteremia.

The body responds to bacteremia by dramatically increasing the number of white blood cells to fight the bacteria and aid in removing them. During this period an imbalance exists in that there are more white cells than red, but this is a relative condition and cannot be called anemia.

To a patient in normal health, transient bacteremia presents no real danger. But patients suffering from rheumatic heart disease, and some chronic debilitating diseases, such as chronic lung disease or diabetes, should be protected with antibiotics some days previous to the extraction and some days after.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

aboard a plane I had a couple of drinks and had just started to doze off when I heard a female voice say, "May I have your autograph?" I reached for my pen and sat up only to discover she was talking to someone in the seat behind me. He was a sports personality, Red Barber. I had been thinking. At last, someone has recognized me.

He likes the company of his fellow actors. "Actors are lovely people mostly," he smiles. "We herd together against the rest of the world, against producers, directors, authors and agents. We're happiest when we're on our own. It's a tolerant society and very vulnerable."

Jerry Orbach knows just how vulnerable an actor can be. After "Carnival," in which he got excellent reviews as a bitter, crippled puppeteer, he waited nearly seven years for another lead part on Broadway.

"It seemed unfair that 'Carnival' hadn't projected me into stardom and steady work," he says. "Then I began rationalizing. I decided I was really too young for the kind of parts I was going

 HOPE NEWSPAPER HISTORY:
The 1929 consolidation joined the two principal newspaper lines dating back to within five years of Hope's incorporation in 1875.

 1899 — Star of Hope founded as a weekly by Claude Mc-Corkie; converted to an evening daily by his son, Ed. McCorkie, publishing until the 1929 consolidation.

 The opposition line:
1880 — Hope News founded by Lowry Brothers.

 1883 — Sold to Withers & Johnson, name changed to Hope Telegraph.

 1893 — Later in same year renamed to Claude McCorkie and renamed Hope Mercury.

 1894 — Sold to James H. Betts, who named it Hope Gazette, under which name it was published continuously until 1922, published by Betts, J.L. Tullis, and Col. W.W.
Folsom in the last-named year in 1916.

 1918 — Purkins & Gates bought the weekly Gazette and made it a companion paper to their new daily, Arkansas Evening Herald
— but both papers suspended in 1922.

 1926 — Plant was revived by Curtis Cannon as the weekly
Hempstead County Review.

 1927 — Cannon sold plant to D.A. Gean, who established the morning Hope Daily Press.

 1929 — C. E. Palmer and A.H.
Washburn consolidated The Star and the Press as Hope Star, with Palmer as president and Washburn secretary-treasurer.

 1957 — Following Mr. Palmer's death Mrs. Palmer became president.

 1969 — With Mrs. Palmer's retirement from Star Publishing Co. Washburn became 76 per cent owner and president — balance 24 per cent being held by Texarkana Newspapers, Inc.

Mason Williams Has a Talent

 By ROGER DOUGHTY
NEA Staff Correspondent

 NEW YORK — (NEA) —
"I'm fascinated by my own head," Mason Williams was saying the other day, patting the neatly trimmed lengthy locks that trickle down past his ears and run smack into a recently cultivated crop of chin whiskers. "I just don't know where everything

 driving trucks."
Williams knows he's big with the college crowd because his record sales in campus communities are very high. Most of the advance orders for his books came from the same areas.

 "Kids don't like to be thought after," the writer-composer-producer-guitarist-creative thinker claims.

 The bidding in the box is that of Culbertson and Light-
ner. Ely's three-spade bid meant and we doubt if Lightner did. But Teddy raised to four on the theory that Ely had a good hand with lots of spades.

 Ely revalued his hand and bid five diamonds as a slam try but Lightner wisely felt that his club and heart honors would not be worth much and bid only five spades.

 West opened the ace of hearts and shifted to a trump that was won by dummy's seven. Ely was rightly suspicious of that heart lead but saw an easy way to make his contract. He cashed his ace and king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. He returned to his hand by ruffing a club, drew trumps and conceded a trick to the jack of diamonds.

 The common sense system did even better. There were no forcing bids available so Buller simply opened four spades and played the hand there.

 We wonder if in a 1969
team match both sides would stay out of this slam contract. We do know one thing.
No one would open with either three or four spades.

Twins Hit Four Homers For Victory

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Minnesota unloaded some heavy lumber Friday and ... surprise, surprise ... none of it belonged to Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison or Tony Oliva.
The Twins smacked four home runs—two by spray hitters Cesar Tovar and Rod Carew, another by rookie Graig Nettles and the fourth by relief pitcher Joe Grzenda—to overcome the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5.

Killebrew, Allison and Oliva—the Twins' power men—had two hits Friday and have managed just two homers and 10 RBIs among them all spring. They left the heavy work to the others again Friday.
Tovar, who had six homers all last year, tagged a three-run shot to start the Twins' comeback from a 5-0 deficit against the Dodgers. Then homers by Carew, who had only one last year, and Nettles, who created some late-season excitement with five homers in 22 games in 1968, tied the game. Finally, relief pitcher Grzenda won it with a ninth inning homer.
In other games, Atlanta ripped Washington 9-4, Houston edged the New York Mets 5-4, Montreal shut out Detroit 8-0, Kansas City shaded Pittsburgh 2-1 and the Chicago White Sox outslugged Boston 10-8.

Also, Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 9-2, the Chicago Cubs dropped San Francisco 9-4, California took San Diego 8-1, Cleveland clobbered Oakland 12-2 and Baltimore topped the New York Yankees 3-1.
Rookie Darrell Evans paced ar and a double in a five-run seventh inning rally as Atlanta pounded the Senators. Del Unser drove in three runs for Washington.
Houston bunched three runs in the seventh inning to defeat the Mets. Doubles by John Edwards and Jesus Alou keyed the rally.
Three Montreal pitchers—Bill Stoneman, Skip Gulin and Carroll Sembera—limited Detroit to two hits as the Expos romped over the Tigers.
Wally Bunker worked six innings and Kansas City made a pair of first inning runs stand up for a victory over Pittsburgh.
Bill Melton hammered two home runs, leading the White Sox past Boston. Melton scored four runs, drove in two and had three hits.

Grant Jackson went seven innings in Philadelphia's victory over the Reds. Three walks and singles by John Callison and Don Money led to three Phillie runs in the first inning.
Ron Santo and Don Kessinger paced a 15-hit attack with three hits apiece in the Cubs' victory over San Francisco. Ken Henderson had three doubles and a single for the Giants.
Rick Reichardt had three singles and a homer, leading California past San Diego. Jim McClothin worked seven innings for the Angels.
Jimmie Hall drove in three runs with a homer and a double, helping the Indians beat Oakland. The Athletics committed three errors, running their total to 24 for the last 10 games.
Baltimore pushed two runs across in the ninth inning to beat the Yankees with Don Buford singling the tie-breaker across and then scoring an insurance run.

Will Lew Wind Up A Knick?

By MARTY RALBOVSKY
NEA Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE—(NEA)—Don't be surprised if Lew Alcindor winds up with the New York Knickerbockers next season.

The National Basketball Association keeps insisting that negotiations with Alcindor will be conducted in the usual businesslike manner, but just in case, it has an ace in the hole which it will use if the threat of losing Alcindor to the American Basketball League becomes a possibility.

It is no secret that Alcindor is leaning toward the NBA. It also is no secret that he would prefer playing pro ball in New York City (his home town), more than anywhere else.

The strongest point in the ABA's favor is that the New York Nets and multimillionaire owner Arthur Brown have acquired draft rights to Alcindor and are dangling a million-dollar contract and a new $16 million arena in Nassau, L.I., in front of him.

So, if Alcindor and the ABA start getting serious in their discussions, look for the NBA to swing into action. The first move would be the abolition of the rule that prevents NBA clubs from trading first-round draft choices for a year. With that roadblock wiped from the books, the NBA would be in a position to surpass the ABA's strongest bargaining point—the lure of New York.

The maneuver would go like this:

The Milwaukee Bucks, who have draft rights to Alcindor, would be free to trade him. A deal with the Knicks would then be worked out and Milwaukee, presumably, would receive a few established players, a future draft choice or two, and a bundle of money. The Knicks would get Alcindor and he, in turn, would be playing in Madison Square Garden, leaving everybody happy, except the ABA people.

The probability of such maneuvering figures to increase because the ABA is publicly claiming that it is pulling out all stops in the battle for Alcindor. On the night before the NCAA championship game, Alcindor was the guest of ABA Commissioner George Mikan at the Kentucky Colonels-Minnesota Pipers game in Louisville's Convention Center.

He brought along his father, teammates Sidney Wicks and Curtis Rowe, and former teammate Lucius Allen and they were all escorted by Mikan into the Minnesota dressing room after the game. Alcindor talked for a half-hour with Minnesota's Connie Hawkins, an old New York City friend, and Hawkins told him, among other things, not to take the ABA lightly.

Mikan, himself, had a long talk with Alcindor and says the ABA's chances of landing him are better than most people think.

"Money is no problem," he says. "We can match any financial offer the NBA makes to Alcindor. We're also offering him a chance to play in his home town in a brand new arena 20 miles from Times Square. We will do anything to get Lew because we feel he will do for us what Joe Namath did for the American Football League. We are in the same situation the AFL was in before it landed Namath. Now look at that league."

Alcindor remains noncommittal about his future. Right after the NCAA title game, he flew back to New York with his father while the rest of the UCLA team returned to Los Angeles. "I'm going home for a little vacation," he said, but would not confirm a report that he plans to meet with the Nets' Brown during the respite.

Alcindor's father, a New York transit policeman who spent the NCAA championship game playing trombone in the UCLA band, says Lew isn't going to rush into anything. "I know he wants to play in the NBA," he says. "because it has all the great players. But I also know he wants to come home to New York. He's just going to wait and see what develops."

What is sure to develop is some shrewd advice from Alcindor's advisers, and an eventual showdown between the leagues. Financially, the ABA is in the thick of things, but if Alcindor and his consultants insist upon a Milwaukee-to-New York maneuver, and get it, the NBA will get him, Art Brown and his millions notwithstanding.

All the NBA must decide is which has more importance, Lew Alcindor or the rulebook?

PITCHING—Mudcat Grant, Larry Jackson and Larry Jaster will anchor the pitching staff. Ex-Met Don Shaw and Don McGinn, who saw brief action with the Reds last season, will back them up. Bullpen will be thrown open to rookies, the best of which appears to be Carl Morton (13.5 at Shreveport last season). Rating: B-.

CATCHING—John Bateman from the Astros will get the job, but ex-Cub John Boccabella (whom Leo Durocher once rated highly) will give him a battle. Ron Brand, another ex-Astro, is No. 3. Rating: C-.

INFIELD—Strub, who hit .291 at Houston last season, holds down first base. On opposite corner will be Bob Bailey, who is still trying to regain the batting eye he had in Pittsburgh but never quite regained after being traded to the Dodgers. Maury Wills, still a base-running threat, will handle short. Second base is wide open. Best bet is Angel Hermoso (.286 at Shreveport) and Jose Labay (.292 at Tulsa). Rating: C+.

OUTFIELD—Mota, who hit .281 with Pirates last year, will be in center. Mack Jones from the Reds will be in left and either Ty Cline (from Giants) or Don Bosch (from Mets) in right. Rating: C.

ROOKIES TO WATCH—Pitcher Bob Reynolds from Amarillo will get look, along with infielder Juan Rios, up from Jacksonville.

Will Remember 'The Team That Almost Won It'

By LEE MUELLER
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Boston College guard Billy Evans remembers the cold December day Bob Cousy walked into the dressing room and told his team.

"He said that he was sorry but this was going to be his last season as coach," Evans recalled.

"We were 5-3 (record-wise) at the time and something seemed to happen—not anything we were conscious of, but it was there. We didn't talk about it, but it was on our minds. We wanted to win for him."

"It's a hard thing to measure. We didn't say let's pull up our boots and do it for the coach. But maybe the reason I did things like drive on the floor for the ball was that I wanted to win so badly for him."

Boston wanted to win so badly for Cousy that today the Eagles are National Invitational Tournament runners-up. Whipping off 19 straight victories, BC provided an exit for a basketball coaching career unmatched since St. John's won the NIT for Joe Lapchick four years ago.

Six years have passed since a green-clad Cousy ran down the checked Boston Garden floor, looking right and passing left; since the short-legged wizard with the slicked-back black hair quit the Boston Celtics to become a coach.

"They've been six of the most rewarding years of my life," says Cousy, "but it's been too hard on me and my family to keep up the competitive edge. It's an edge I've been on for the past 25 years."

On the bench, Cousy suffered as never before in his days with the Celtics or at

Bob Cousy

Holy Cross, where he played college ball. Fellows like Lefty Driesell at Davidson might have leaped off the bench in their anxiety. But Cousy sat gripping his game program, rolled into a frayed lead pipe, and agonized.

"I liked the coaching part of it," he says. "but the recruiting was a pain in the rear."

Like Vince Lombardi two years ago, Cousy leaves his profession a winner. His teams won 20 or more games in four of his six seasons, compiling a 118-38 record. Only one previous Boston College club won as many as 20.

This success, plus the near NIT championship, makes it

Rico's 'Dogs' Hurt

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. —(NEA)—Rico Carty, plump and happy, is back in baseball. The Atlanta Braves' 28-year-old outfielder missed all of last season when he was stricken with tuberculosis near the end of spring training.

"This spring," said Braves' manager Luman Harris, "the doctors advised that Rico take his time and not try to rush things."

"We wanted him to take it easy. So what happens? He's been hitting so well and running the bases so often that he's developed another problem—sore dogs."

The important thing, however, is that Carty is back on his feet, regardless how blistered. And he is attacking meals and pitchers with equal ferocity.

Carty, a 6-2 native of the Dominican Republic, now weighs 220 pounds. He says his best playing weight is 195, some 20 pounds more than he weighed a year ago March.

"I couldn't understand it,"

By BOB COCHNAR
NEA Automotive Editor

SEBRING, Fla.—(NEA)—How an apparently enduring tradition ever began amidst the orange blossoms and torrid wastes of central Florida, only Alec Ulmann knows for sure.

When that television pitchman flashed his sickly-sweet smile and urged us to "come on down" to sunny Florida, he certainly wasn't referring to Sebring, which has got to be the desert in an oasis of pleasure.

Yet, as Alec Ulmann is first to say, on March 22 thousands move, lemming-like, southward to witness 12 steamy hours (noxious, too, when the motor oil mixes with the orange blossoms) of racing called the Grand Prix of Endurance or, simply, Sebring.

And they've been doing it for 18 years, under the disciplined but sometimes frenetic guidance of Alec Ulmann, head of a ramp outfit called the Automobile Racespecially hard for Cousy to quit, naturally. So, like Lombardi, he may also return.

The comparison amuses Cousy.

"Who knows, I may be like Lombardi," he says, grinning. "He was out a year and said it was the worst year of his life. Ted Williams was out and he came back, too."

When and if Cousy comes back, he says it probably would be as a college coach.

"I might consider the pros," he says, "but I don't like the idea of flying eight months a year. That's why I quit in the first place. And I quit prematurely."

Cousy's pro career ended in 1963 when he was 34.

"Physically, I probably had two years left," he said, "but the pace and travel had exhausted me."

So, Bob Cousy quits again. And begins again. He will, he says, be busy.

Bob Cousy's Summer Basketball Camp has flourished in recent years and there are Bob Cousy basketball shoes and Bob Cousy basketballs to be promoted.

"I'll also be working for a travel agency," he says.

"I've been asked to do clinics in Europe this summer—Italy, Spain and Belgium."

Finally, of course, there is every ex-sportsman's last outpost—television. Cousy, a New York City native who spoke only French until he was five, has had some recent practice. "I might get back into TV," he said. "I haven't mastered the English language yet, but it's coming."

If you ask the Boston College Eagles, though, Cousy communicates pretty well.

"Twenty years from now when he talks about his great thrills in basketball and he remembers Red Auerbach and Bill Russell and the Celtics, maybe he'll remember the team that almost won the NIT," says Billy Evans.

"I'd like that. That would make it all worthwhile."

Rico Carty

he recalled. "I had no appetite and was losing weight. Orange juice was all I could put down. So I went to the club doctor and asked him to feed me. He checked me over and thought I had pneumonia, but he sent me to a clinic, anyway."

"The doctor there told me I had tuberculosis. I said, 'Doctor you are a liar. I am healthy. My wind is good, I am not spitting blood and I feed good. Just give me a pill so I can eat.' But he was right: Tuberculosis."

Carty said he knew he would recover. Doctors at Southeast Florida Tuberculosis Hospital in Lantana—where Carty was treated for 168 days—told him his affliction was caught just in time and that he had a 100 per cent chance of regaining full strength.

"I don't know how I got TB," he said, "and I don't want to know. I think only about the present and forget the past."

His baseball past, though, is something to consider. In four full seasons, Carty has a lifetime major league batting average of .305, one of the highest in baseball. And Carty, of course, is an important factor in the Braves' pennant plans.

Actually, Carty was in uniform one time last season. On Sept. 6, he was released from Lantana and flown to Atlanta. He dressed for the day game with Houston and presented the lineup card at home plate. The fans stood and applauded.

"It made me feel good and it made me be thankful," he said. "And it made me miss playing more than anything."

"In the hospital I would get sometimes 200 letters a day. Red Schoendienst wrote me, too. He had TB when he was a player. He said I was lucky that I would not have to be cut, like him. But I am younger than when he had it."

"I was lucky. And the other patients were nice to me. Many were baseball fans. And they would say, 'How come you are here, you are so muscular?'"

After an 11-month layoff, Carty is again honing those muscles.

"The greatest thrill for me," he said, "was the first time I swung a bat this spring. Joy was all over me."

It is doubtful that even sore dogs will diminish that joy.

Promise Of The Laser

It is only 10 years old and still has limited capabilities, but the laser beam already is being spoken of as the one great invention above all others which will probably exert the greatest influence of life in the 21st century.

Some of its more dramatic uses are well known. It can drill a hole through a diamond or thick steel. It can disintegrate a rock pile in seconds. It has been used to illuminate portions of the moon for surveying. In communications, potential uses of the laser beam are endless. NASA already has developed a laser system capable of sending or receiving a message over a distance of 50 million miles.

In medicine, the laser has been used to cement corneas in eye operating in limited bloodless surgery, and it is being discussed as a tool against cancer. Industrial uses of the laser are limitless. It has shown great success in highly intricate welding of miniature parts in the electronic industry.

It is easy to see by the widespread uses already envisioned for the laser why it has been called the next century's greatest implement. — Macon (Ga.) News

Restraint?

Newspapermen always react with what might be called "court-house cynicism" when they hear an appeal from a government official for more press "self-restraint."

What officials from court-houses to state capitols to the White House itself really mean by that is a restraint on press criticism of governmental mistakes. No official here has ever urged that the press "restrain" itself in praising his official actions. Shreveport (La.) Journal

Second 40 Years

Women have a life expectancy of some five or six years longer than men. That is generally known but what is not so well known is that women who reach the age of 40 have as much life expectancy left as a newborn female infant had in 1900.

There are a good many 40s involved in this matter. Now the woman of 40 can expect to live another 40 years, whereas 40 years was the total life expectancy of a girl baby born at the turn of the century. Also, there are some 40 million women in the over-40 age group.

Inasmuch as Dr. Alton Ochsner of the Ochsner Foundation in New Orleans and other authorities say the smoking of cigarettes cuts life expectancy by at least half-dozen years, it will be interesting to observe whether women continue to enjoy that extra six years of life when they have been smoking as long as men. Now men are dropping the smoking habit faster than women. Who knows? Someday, non-smoking men may live longer than smoking women, if the women continue to smoke.

Anyhow, who should worry now over reaching the formerly dreaded age of 40? With another 40 years to go, the first 40 doesn't look so bad. If life expectancy continues to lengthen, it may be that eventually 40 won't even be middle-aged.

And, with those "golden years" the government and others are always talking about, the second 40 may be better than the first. — Monroe (La.) Morning World.

Declares Self a Candidate

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Former Gov. Robert B. Meyner, coupling his past record with a plea to lead New Jersey through "the challenging new horizons of the 1970s," declared himself a candidate today for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Meyner, a 61-year-old lawyer who served as governor from 1953 to 1961, called a news conference to announce his candidacy.

The constitution prevented him from seeking a third term when he was succeeded in 1961 by Gov. Richard J. Hughes, also a Democrat. Hughes now is barred from seeking a third successive term.

DESTINATION MARS

The United States, which first took a close look at earth's sister planet in 1965 with Mariner 4, has another date with Mars. Two new Mariners, 6 and 7, are scheduled to bypass the red planet in midsummer, the first swinging along the equator and the second taking a polar route from north to south. Heavier and more sophisticated, the new spacecraft also will approach closer, 2,000 miles from the Martian surface compared with Mariner 4's 6,000 miles. Each will carry two television cameras. If all works as scheduled, the result will be 33 times more picture data than Mariner 4 produced and 10 times better resolution, showing surface details as small as 900 feet across. Mariner 4's best was about two miles. Left, Mars from Mariner 4.

Mars Has Some Water, Claim Scientists

By DONALD H. HARRISON
Associated Press Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists studying light reflected from Mars report "definite and conclusive" evidence of water in the red planet's atmosphere, indicating the possibility of life.

Mars is so dry, however, that only the driest deserts of Earth or peaks like Mt. Everest compare. Dr. Ronald Schorn of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said he is convinced after five years' observation there is enough water in Mars' atmosphere to fill a lake a mile wide, a mile deep and a mile long.

"If you took all the water we found, and laid it out on the planet, it would be only one-tenth of an inch thick," he said Monday night. "It still may not be a great place to live but there's a chance of life there."

Schorn and Steven Little of the University of Texas made their observations through the 86-inch telescope at McDonald Observatory at Fort Davis, Tex. Schorn said the scientists photographed the spectrum of Mars' atmosphere with infrared film. The spectrograph photo showed the presence of water in the planet's cloud cover, he said.

"There's hardly a place on earth with that low a humidity reading," he said. "The only place I could think of is the top of Mt. Everest. There's more water on Earth's deserts than on Mars."

So far, there is no way to measure whether some portions of Mars have more water than others, he said. But with a new 107-inch telescope now in use, the scientists expect to look at smaller regions of the planet.

"We'll be able to see if this localized—whether some areas of Mars are more capable of sustaining life than others," the astronomer predicted.

Schorn said photographs by the Mariner spacecraft now approaching Mars will help to solve that question. Since 1948 scientists have had evidence that the planet's white polar caps, which change size with the seasons, consist of ice an inch or two thick. Atmospheric water vapor has been thought possible but never before detected spectroscopically.

Scientists hold Mars as the likeliest place in our solar system apart from Earth to sustain life. The other planets present too hostile an environment.

Police Had No Jurisdiction

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Police have an admitted burglar on their hands, but no jurisdiction.

A 7-year-old boy was caught burglarizing a home. He admitted breaking into the same house three times earlier, police said, and into another home once. Officers said radios, walkie talkies and a ring, all valued at $200, were taken.

Juvenile Court said it could not handle the case because the boy was under the court's minimum age for jurisdiction—eight years. Police said they would try to work out something with the youngster's mother.

Film to Show Last Moments of Kennedy

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The State begins its rebuttal in the murder trial of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan today without the opportunity to show a movie film of Robert F. Kennedy in the moments before he was mortally wounded.

After the defense rested its month-long case Thursday, Judge Herbert V. Walker ruled the film would be inflammatory — thus denying the state a vivid way of evoking the memory of Kennedy.

The color film showed Kennedy addressing supporters in the Ambassador Hotel after he won California's Democratic presidential primary last June 4 and ended with him, arms outstretched in victory, saying, "On to Chicago." He left the stage, walked a few steps into an anteroom, and was shot by Sirhan.

"Here is a young man who just made what he considered a major victory, very happy, very gay, congratulating everybody," the judge said. "The contrast between that and what happened in this court certainly would be conveyed to the jury."

Co-prosecutors John E. Howard and David N. Flitts said they wanted to run the 12-minute movie to show that Kennedy that night said nothing about Israel. Sirhan claims the New York senator's pro-Israel stance turned his love for Kennedy to hate.

"I recall no evidence that this defendant heard any part or appreciable part of that speech," Judge Walker said in denying the motion.

Spring-When a Man's Fancy Turns to Love, Housecleaning, Yard

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

It got here last week, Spring, I mean. With its arrival, you know what a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of, but the female mind is apt to be juggling an assortment of ideas pertaining to spring cleaning.

Don't shudder, fellows. It could be classified as a Necessary Evil.

Even though your spouse is lost behind the vacuum cleaner with each and every one of its attachments or she is buried somewhere in the deepest recesses of a closet or she is otherwise engaged in removing some filthy object that has lain dormant all winter, even though all these things take place plus the fact that supper is late two or three nights in a row, have patience. She has the blessings of one of our finest groups, the Arkansas Fireman.

You see, homemakers in communities throughout the nation are engaged in a Spring Clean-Up and by sprucing up homes and throwing out trash accumulated during the winter, they are making a brighter and pleasanter place in which to live and, even more important, they are eliminating fire hazards.

Property lost through fires can usually be replaced, in time, but lives lost in this manner are gone forever.

So, we have the number one reason for a Spring Clean-Up. But there are others. How else could there be an inventory of the kids' clothes with a decision about who inherits what, if closets and bureau drawers were not explored thoroughly? Or, how else would old hats — saved as

Wilson, Nigeria Minister Talk

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson spent three hours with Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon today in general talks that listeners said hinted no major change in British policy toward Nigeria.

Wilson left immediately in a Nigerian plane for Enugu, original capital of secessionist Biafra which fell to federal forces in October 1967, three months after the war began.

The talks between Wilson and the Nigerian head of state were described as "very friendly" and covered a wide range of political and military aspects. A second round Sunday is to deal with specific matters.

Ten Battles Blast Cong Offensive

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and government forces fought 10 battles across South Vietnam—one the closest to Saigon since the Viet Cong launched their spring offensive—and three American aircraft were shot down, military spokesmen said today.

The fighting left 251 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese dead at a cost of seven Americans and 10 South Vietnamese killed and 74 Americans and 30 government soldiers wounded.

One of the downed aircraft was an Air Force B57 twin-engine bomber, hit by ground fire Thursday near the coastal city of Qui Nhon. The crewmen were rescued uninjured. The plane was the 351st fixed-wing aircraft lost over South Vietnam.

The other two were helicopters, whose loss sparked a 2½-hour firefight only six miles northeast of Saigon, the closest fighting to the capital in the five-week-old offensive.

Spokesmen said an observation helicopter from the U.S. 1st Infantry Division backed up by a gunship were reconnoitering the outskirts of Saigon Friday when Viet Cong gunners opened up with machine guns. They downed the observation craft, which was later salvaged, and then hit the gunship as it swooped to help. The gunship was destroyed and a crewman was killed.

Infantrymen of the 1st Division sought out the enemy a clash with about 30 Viet Cong soldiers. They reported killing 10 at a cost of one American wounded.

In the Mekong Delta, South Vietnamese infantrymen suffered eight killed and 12 wounded in a fierce battle with Viet Cong troops near the provincial capital of Quang Ngai City. They reported 32 enemy soldiers killed.

Vietnam Withdrawal Would Take 2 Years After Order Comes

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army staff officers estimate it may take as long as two years for a complete withdrawal of all U.S. soldiers and equipment from Vietnam when the order finally comes to pull out of the war zone.

Although no decision has been reached on a timetable the Army is working on plans now to avoid the waste and confusion that accompanied the first pull-back of U.S. troops from battle zones in past wars.

The staff officers made the time estimate after Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor told the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday that "a deliberate rather than a hasty timetable" is the best way to avoid the difficulties that followed World War II and Korea.

"We are therefore planning now, in a much more detailed and orderly manner than at any time previously for actions to be taken when hostilities decrease to a level at which the South Vietnamese no longer require the assistance of our own combat troops," Resor said.

The planning involves not only the removal of the 360,000 Army troops and billions of dollars worth of arms and equipment, but also their repositioning in

Senate Fails to Suspend Rules

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Senate failed Thursday to suspend the rules and permit the introduction of a bill that would establish the machinery under which residents of dry North Arkansas counties could buy whisky in Missouri and transport it back into Arkansas.

The vote was 17-5 with 24 votes needed.

Under the bill, authored by Rep. Vada Sheld of Mountain Home, alcoholic beverages, bearing an Arkansas tax stamp, could be bought outside the state and lawfully transported into Arkansas. It is illegal to bring whisky into Arkansas under current law.

Going for 3rd Tour of Duty in Vietnam

By DONALD C. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Medal of Honor holder David G. Dolby is returning to Vietnam, where he won the highest American military decoration when he was 19.

It will be his third tour of duty there.

Dolby, an Army enlistee at the age of 18 and now 22, said Thursday after re-enlisting for a second three-year Army hitch that he expects to be back in Vietnam "in a week or two."

"If I'm going to be in the Army," Dolby said, "I'd rather be in Vietnam—where the action is. I feel I can be of more help to my fellow men there."

"I was there 16 months and I'm not going to get reckless—I never was. I just tried to do a job."

A spokesman at the Army recruiting station here said Dolby, a six-footer with a trim mustache, would spend a week's leave in Miami, then report to Oakland, Calif., for assignment to a Vietnam replacement company.

Dolby is from Oaks, Pa., in nearby Montgomery County. He was awarded the Medal of Honor for valor during Operation Crazy Horse near An Khe in May 1966, during his first tour of duty in Vietnam.

Taking over command from his dying platoon leader, Dolby rallied his men to hold their position for four hours under heavy enemy fire.

President Johnson decorated him with the Medal of Honor at a White House ceremony in September 1967. The sergeant also holds the Silver Star.

Dolby returned to Vietnam for another four months when he was 20. He was mustered out of the Army in February 1968.

In the past year he's "done construction work."

Through all the praise for Eisenhower ran the common refrain—victor in war, man of peace.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield compared him to George Washington. And perhaps Eisenhower, with his landslide victories, may well have been the most popular President since the birth of the nation.

Public opinion polls still rank him as the most admired American.

Unknown to the nation when World War II began, Eisenhower rose to command the mightiest armies ever assembled in battle through the invasion of Europe to his personal acceptance of the German surrender.

Elected President in 1952 and again in 1956—the only Republican in this century to win successive terms—Eisenhower, with his warm smile and simple words, brought reassuring confidence to a nation beset with Cold War crises and won as just plain "Ike" a place in the hearts of millions.
